

City passes abandoned property ordinance

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

The Green County City Council adopted an abandoned and blighted property ordinance at Monday's April meeting.

The ordinance creates a new classification of abandoned urban property in the city limits to allow the levying of taxes at the highest permissible rates. The Council action adds language to existing city code to classify vacant or unimproved lot or parcel of ground in the city that meets certain criteria as abandoned urban property.

The criteria include dilapidated, unsanitary, unsafe properties, properties that by reason or neglect have become infested with vermin, have been tax delinquent for at least three years and other state statute defined reasons.

The ad valorem tax on such designated properties will be 75 cents per each $100 of assessed value. The regular city property tax rate is 19.8 cents per $100 value.

City officials said that blighted and deteriorated properties require greater code enforcement activities by the city, require greater financial cost to the city and require an increased level of city services such as police and fire protection.

The city will notify the owners of such properties each year of the designation. Owners may appeal the decision to the city's Code Enforcement Board.

The city's stated goal with the ordinance is to continue its commitment to cleaning up blighted, vacated or abandoned properties, officials said.

2015 GCHS prom set for Saturday

SPECIAL TO THE R-H

The Green County High School Prom will be held Saturday.

A parent/public walk-through to view the prom decorations will be held from 5:30-6:30 p.m. CDT. Doors will open for students to enter at 7 p.m.

The prom program will be held at approximately 8:30 p.m.

This year's theme is "Party Like Gatsby."

Green County ASAP is sponsoring an after-prom party Saturday, from 11:30 p.m. to 2:30 a.m. at Phillips Lanes in Campbellsville.

There will be free bowling and the game room will be open, but students must have their own coins to play the games.

This event is open to all Green County High School juniors and seniors, including those who may not go to the prom.

In order to get in, students must pay an admission fee of either a 12-pack of canned sodas or a box of pre-packaged snacks, such as Little Debbie cakes.

The deadline to sign up is April 17 at Green County High School.

Former GCHS math teacher faces charges

FROM STAFF REPORTS

A former Green County High School teacher faces sexual abuse charges after police arrested him last week.

Thomas Williams, 26, 2937 Hwy. 910 Russell Springs, who resigned his position as a math teacher at Green County High School, was arrested April 7 and charged with three counts of first-degree sex abuse for allegedly having inappropriate contact with a student.

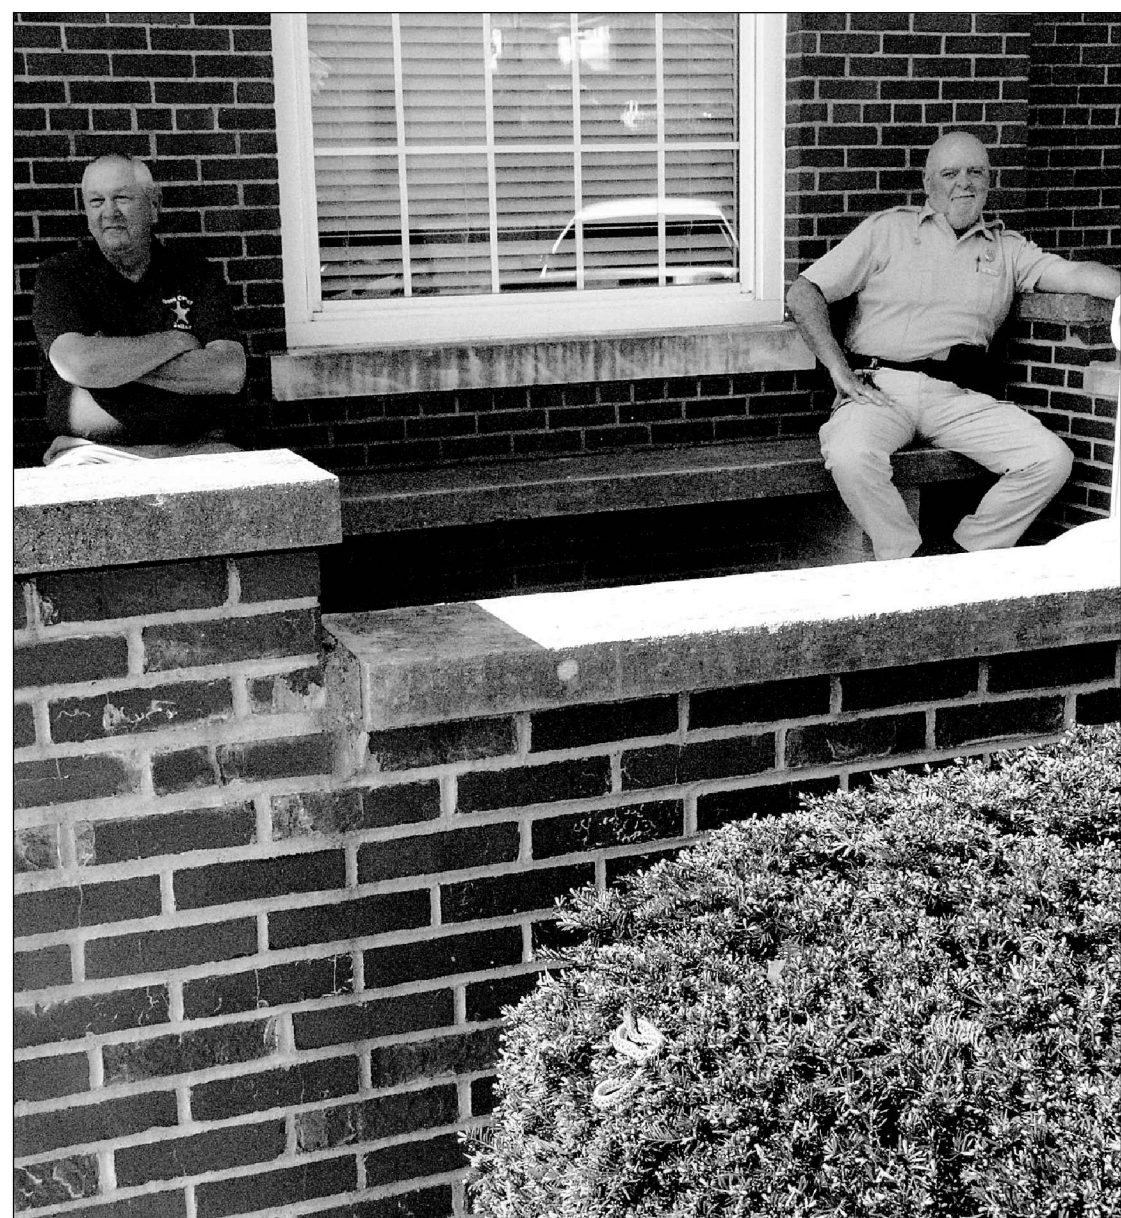

Kentucky State Trooper Jeremy Baker served a Grand Jury indictment warrant on Williams, who turned himself in at the Taylor County Jail. The indictment warrant was a result of an investigation conducted by Post 15 Detectives in March of 2015 with allegations of inappropriate contact with a student who is less than 16-years-old. The Grand Jury indictment charges the alleged incidents occurred between Nov. 23 and Feb. 13.

Bond for Williams, who was in his first year as a Green County teacher, was set at $30,000 cash.

Green County Jailer James "Buck" Henderson, left, and Transportation Officer David Judd were awaiting the start of Monday's Green County District Court session when they were joined by this garter snake in a bush for a bit of interspecies communing at the entrance to the Green County Courthouse. The officers were alerting passersby to the presence of the harmless snake lest they be startled by sudden discovery. Every spring a colony of snakes at the courthouse begins to stir.

New Trust For Life specialty license plate available

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

Kentucky residents now have new license plate options for their vehicles including a specialty plate for the Kentucky Circuit Court Clerks' Trust For Life released April 1.

The Trust for Life initiative's goal is to educate Kentuckians about the life-saving mission of organ donation and give drivers the opportunity to become an organ and tissue donor when licenses are renewed.

"There are 120,000 people on the waiting list in the United States," said Green County Circuit Clerk Ann Mattingly. "More than 1.5 million Kentuckians have registered to donate life and the choice to do so is entirely personal, but there have been many Green Countians who have benefited from transplants."

The cost of purchase for the Trust For Life specialty plate is $34. In addition, those purchasing the plates can donate up to $10 to the circuit clerks' Trust For Life fund.

to put the mission, 'Organ, Eye and Tissue Donation Saves Lives,' into perspective. This statement illustrates the grandeur of what a simple 'YES' at the driver's license office has the ability to do," said Shelley Heavrin Snyder, executive director for Kentucky Circuit Court Clerks' Trust For Life. "Similarly, it gives passionate individuals the opportunity to publicly show their support for this worthy cause. If more people know about and support the lifesaving mission of donation, more lives will be saved. We are so grateful for the opportunity to share this message with everyone on the road."

For more information on Trust For Life, visit <http://www.trustforlife.org>.

Kentucky offers dozens of plates promoting everything from military service and love of nature to coal and horses. Any owner of a non-commercial motor vehicle under 10,000 pounds required to be registered for use on Kentucky highways can purchase a specialty plate at the county clerk's office in their county of residence. Costs vary. A complete list of plates and their prices is available at <http://mvl.ky.gov>.

Beyond the state's standard "Unbridled Spirit" and "In God We Trust" license plates, Kentucky offers more than 100 specialty plates, most of which promote a cause and enable nonprofit organizations to receive donations from the public. Those purchasing a specialty plate can donate up to $10 to the organization it represents. The money is passed directly to the organization.

Another specialty plate that became available April 1 is the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation plate featuring an image of a smallmouth bass.

"Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation's smallmouth bass license plate commemorates the world-record smallmouth caught in Kentucky waters by David L. Hayes in 1955 from Dale Hollow Lake," said Chad Miles, the foundation's executive director. "Donations to the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation fund

Federal dollars subvert federalism

Bluegrass Beacon
Jim Waters

We've come – or drifted – a long way since then-President Andrew Jackson vetoed a bill in 1830 that would have provided aid for a Kentucky road project.

Jackson argued that forcing taxpayers nationwide to pay for the road would be a "subversion of the federal system" since it was of "purely local character."

Not only has such restraint been a rarity during our lifetimes, but the increasing dependence that most states have had on federal funding for local projects has resulted in the "gold-plated octagon problem" that even Washington used to lament.

"Officials who evolved the administration's revenue-sharing proposals say they are trying to solve 'the gold-plated octagon problem,'" wrote the late Wall Street Journal editorial page editor Robert L. Bartley in the March 3, 1971 edition of that publication. "One explains, 'If the federal government were giving away gold-plated octagons, and the cities had to pay half the cost, every damn city in the nation would have one.'"

But Washington power-seekers now not only tolerate such dependence, they welcome it – viewing such attachment to federal funding as a way to force upon states policies that the Constitution leaves no room for the federal government to meddle with.

Not only does such an approach weaken states' ability to protect their citizens against increasing overreach by the federal government, it also can have downright absurd results.

How else do you explain the fact that drivers get ticketed in Kentucky if anyone in their vehicle gets caught not wearing a seat belt, but motorcyclists older than 21 years of age are not required to even wear a helmet while on the road?

The aha! moment comes when you discover that our Washington masters threatened to withhold hundreds of millions of federal highway-fund dollars unless Kentucky passed a seat-belt law.

Some well-intentioned policymakers hold that if Kentucky doesn't take its share of federal pork, other states will.

Such an attitude has allowed a "subversion of the federal system" that promises to be much more harmful than the erosion of personal liberty signified by tightly strapped seat belts.

When the Obama administration waved $4.3 billion of so-called "Race to the Top" funding in front of states in 2009, it did so with the intention of inducing them to do what the feds have absolutely no constitutional business meddling with: adopt one-size-fits-all educational standards.

State bureaucrats care little about minor nuisances like constitutional principles – especially when so much money is at stake.

Combine that apathy for how federalism is supposed to work with the fact that the states were having their toughest times since the Great Depression figuring out how to balance their budgets, and bureaucrats jumped at the cash.

Kentucky like a desperate date jumped first and hard.

The worst part of this story, though, is that it unalterably committed an entire commonwealth and its students to Common Core State Standards four months before anyone even knew what those criteria – the result of a very nontransparent process – were.

Common Core now is recognized as a dumb-down, minimalist approach totally lacking in key academic areas like advanced high-school mathematics – coursework needed to ensure students have access to careers in science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

The naïve supporters not only of this policy – but of the way it went down – will, with serious faces, claim "this isn't federally mandated policy." Yet without the promise of Race to the Top dollars, many states would have told Washington where it could get off – on Ninth and Tenth Amendment streets.

As the "gold-plated octagon" represents, not only do most state policymakers and bureaucrats seem to lack any real will to address this subversion, but like addicts, want the thrill of the rush even if it puts vulnerable citizens at risk of being negatively impacted by harmful policy.

Proceeds from the concert go to student scholarships at Campbellsville University.

Everyone is also invited to the Derby Rose Gala, which is also a fundraising event for student scholarships. Campbellsville University's Advancement Board and Dr. Michael V. Carter, president, are sponsors of the gala. Tickets to the Derby Rose Gala are $100; if you attend both the gala and the concert, the concert tickets are $25.

The Gatlin Brothers are a Grammy winning trio with humble beginnings from Abilene, Texas. It all began in 1955 when Larry was 6, Steve was 4 and Rudy was 2. Later, they would appear on Slim Willet Radio and various TV shows.

Their career launched when Larry landed a solo deal with Monument Records. Some of the group's hit songs include: "Sweet Becky Walker," "Broken Lady" and "I Just Wish You Were Someone I Love."

Since those days, the road that the trio has plowed has taken them to concert stages all over the world, and has seen their records top the charts and touch the lives of fans from 8 to 80.

Larry says of their 60th Anniversary Tour, "We're not calling it a farewell or a final tour. We're calling it the 60th Anniversary Celebration. By no means are we retiring, but after this tour, we are going to slow down a little bit."

In addition to the tour, the brothers will soon release a new gospel album on Curb Records, titled "Larry Gatlin & the Gatlin Brothers 60th Anniversary Celebration."

Campbellsville University Board of Trustees Dr. Jay Conner and Buzz Cason are long-time friends of the Gatlin Brothers.

Praise His Name

Don't Give In to Negativity

For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he.
Proverbs 23:7

There are many ways in which we can fall into negative patterns of thought or behavior. We all make mistakes, but when we do, we should try to look at them as learning opportunities. We all occasionally say or do thoughtless things that hurt our friends or families, but when we do, we should consider it an opportunity to ask for forgiveness, and our relationship might be deepened thereby. We should all pay closer attention to what we say and do throughout the day. How much of it is knee jerk negativity? And, not just what we say to others, but how much of our internal dialogue is filled with negativity? How often do we berate ourselves for minor mistakes or omissions? We should try to be more like the coach who builds up her athletes with a pep talk or the teacher who convinces his students that they can work out a difficult problem. The important question for the track athlete is not whether you won the race but whether you did your best. Studies show that there are very few times when negativity helps us; it is almost always better to be an optimist than a pessimist. So, do what you can to throw the negativity overboard and to have a more positive attitude. Life is good and getting better, and even when it's not so good you can still choose to make the best of it.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Financial Focus

How to Be an “Environmental Investor”

Next week, we observe the 45th anniversary of Earth Day. Since its inception in 1970, Earth Day has inspired millions of people to take action to improve the environment. But the lessons of environmentalism can also be applied to other areas of life — such as investing. Specifically, as an investor, you may well want to follow the “three Rs”: reduce, reuse and recycle.

Let’s see how these environmental themes can be applied to your investment habits:

- Reduce — Many of us probably own more things than we really need. In fact, if all the other people on Earth used as much “stuff” as we do in the United States, the planet would need to have three to five times more space just to hold and sustain everybody, according to the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences. So from an environmental standpoint, it might be smart for all of us to “streamline” our possessions. And the same could be true for our investments — it’s not always a case of “the more, the merrier.” It’s particularly important not to own too many of the same type of investments, because you could suffer a setback in a market downturn that primarily affects those assets.
- Reuse — One way of being environmentally conscious is to repair, rather than replace, durable goods such as bicycles, washers, dryers, etc. After all, “new” is not always better. Many investors are also prone to tossing out the old and bringing in the new — and not always with the best results. For example, some investors switch their overall strategy every so often in attempts to capitalize on some trend they have heard about. But you’re almost certainly better off by sticking with a long-term strategy
- Recycle — Aluminum cans become airplane parts, old phone books are transformed into textbooks and plastic beverage containers may end up as the carpeting on your floors. It’s truly amazing how recycling can give new life to old, unwanted products. In a way, you can also “recycle” investments that no longer meet your needs, either because your circumstances have changed or because the investments themselves have become fundamentally altered — as is the case when a company in which you invested has shifted its focus or taken its business in a new direction. Instead of just liquidating the investment and using the cash to buy, say, an ultra-high-definition television with all the bells and whistles, you could find a new use for the proceeds in your investment portfolio. To name one possibility, you could use the money to help save for a child’s college education. Or you might use it to help fill other gaps in your portfolio.

By following the “reduce, reuse and recycle” philosophy, you can help make the world a “greener” place to live. And by applying the same principles to the way you invest, you can create a healthier environment in which to pursue your important financial goals.

Kentucky Utilities re-enlists as a Greensburg 20/20 Platinum Partner

SPECIAL TO THE R-H

In 2014, Greensburg 20/20's events brought more than 2,500 people downtown for a variety of events including Jammin' on the Square, the Cattlemen's inaugural Grill Master Challenge and Greensburg's 222nd Birthday Bash.

Lindsey Wilson College's Team Time Trial and Criterium Bike Race held in March was the first event to kick off the 2015 season, bringing approximately 250 race participants from over 30 different colleges to Greensburg.

"Year in and year out, Kentucky Utilities has been one of the best corporate citizens in the state of Kentucky and this year is no exception. Last year KU was the first platinum level sponsor to come on board with our Greensburg 20/20 program leading the way for other businesses as well as individuals in our community," stated Mayor Lisle Cheatham. "Their continued support of the Greensburg 20/20 program and its goals shows their commitment to helping Greensburg and Green County be a strong vibrant community for residents and visitors alike."

forts to offer even more events for our community," said Jackie Bennett, Area Retail Operations Manager. "These events showcase so much of what the city of Greensburg has to offer and investing in this city and its future is important to Kentucky Utilities Company."

Watch for more information about Greensburg 20/20's upcoming events in 2015 including: Jammin' on the Square, the Four Mile [community] Float in June and the three-part Kentucky Humanities Council Chautauqua Dinner Theatre series this fall.

The next event on deck for Greensburg 20/20 will be May 30 in downtown Greensburg. A full day of activities include a 25 Mile Green River Paddle Challenge, beginning at the Green River Lake Spillway in Taylor County and concluding at the Paddle Trail access point, the summer's first Jammin' on the Square concert and the Moonlight Mile, a fast-paced, straight one-mile race finishing at the Old Courthouse.

All details for each of these activities will be made available on the City of Greensburg's website, www.greensburgonline.com.

For additional information about Greensburg 20/20, how to become a corporate or patron sponsor or information on upcoming 2015 events please contact Ivy Stanley at Greensburg City Hall.

Track and field teams sweep at LaRue meet

BY CLEVIS JEFFRIES
STAFF WRITER

The Green County High School track and field teams both won the LaRue County All-Comers meet this past Thursday at Hodgenville. The Dragons garnered 94 points with John Hardin finishing second with 61 and LaRue County third at 31 points. The Lady Dragons accumulated 70 points, John Hardin was second with 55 and LaRue County third at 54.

First place winners for the Dragons were: Bradley Abell in the 1600 meter run, Trevor Wright in the 3200 meter run, Noah Slinker in the 110 and 300 meter hurdles, Dominique

Compton in the long and triple jumps and Andrew Hedgespeth in the shot put and the 4 x 200 and 4 x 400 relay teams.

For the Lady Dragons, winners were: Mikayla Talbott in the shot put and Erin Jagers in the 100 meter dash, long and triple jumps and the 4 x 200 meter relay team.

As of March 31, KYtrackXC.com released the Class A state rankings and the Dragons were ranked ninth and the Lady Dragons, 12th. Bishop Brossart was ranked number one for the boys and Murray High first for the girls.

The middle school Dragons won at LaRue County with three events scored, accumulating 20 points. Bluegrass Middle was second with 15.

For the middle school boys, Kelson Griffiths won the 100 meter dash and Daniel Sidebottom the 200 meter dash.

"The track meet allowed the team to get on a track. This is something we have not been able to do during the last two weeks due to the renovation of our track and the cancellation of meets. There has been improvement in a lot of areas, but there are still areas that we need to work on," said Head Coach James VanMeter. "At this point in the season, we need to be taking steps forward and not taking steps backward. Hopefully, over the next few weeks, the weather will cooperate so that we can compete in the meets that we have scheduled."

Boys win, girls are second in Class A Clash of the Classes

BY CLEVIS JEFFRIES
STAFF WRITER

The Green County High School track and field teams had individual athletes who experienced success Saturday at Bardstown. Dominique Compton and Trevor Wright won individual events at the Danville/Bardstown Clash of the Classes. Compton won the long jump. He also placed fifth in the triple jump. Wright was a winner in the 800 meter run.

The large meet, consisting of Class A, AA and AAA teams, saw several other local track and field athletes place in the top five in their individual events.

Andrew Hedgespeth finished second in the shot put and third in the discus throw; Chris Sallee, third in the 800 meter run; Erin Jagers, third in the triple jump and fifth in the 100 meter dash; Brittany Taylor, fourth in the shot put; Logan Westmoreland, fourth in the shot put; Mikayla Talbott, fifth in the shot put and discus throw; Shelby Howell, fifth in the high jump; and the boys' 4 x 800 meter relay team placed third.

The Dragons won among Class A teams and were fifth overall, scoring 60 points. The Lady Dragons finished runners-up among Class A teams and placed seventh overall with 35 points.

North Hardin won both boys' and girls' competitions, scoring 143 and 171 points, respectively.

"It was a beautiful day for a track meet. The competition at this meet was very competitive. Some of our athletes improved their times and throws, and that is putting them in position to be serious contenders at the state level," said Head Coach James VanMeter. "We have dealt with some adversity with the weather and track renovations, but we are showing progress. The boys' team winning the class A portion of the meet is very encouraging. The girls placing second in the breakdown of the class A portion is also a big accomplishment."

R-H SPORTS

The Lady Dragons scored early in their Class "A" regional tournament game against Campbellsville April 5 at Bethlehem High School in Bardstown, putting five runs on the board and holding Campbellsville to just one run.

In the championship game against Bethlehem, the Lady Dragons held on, matching run for run against their opponents.

In the bottom of the seventh inning Bethlehem scored the tying run followed by the winning run against the Lady Dragons, defeating them 5-4.

Green County's Ivy Hedgespeth, Zoe Vaughn and Mony Matney all received player awards.

R-H SPORTS

GreenCountyMiddle School Dragons went one and one against Adair County Thursday night.

In the first game Green County built an early edge, but Adair fired back to steal the victory 6-4.

In the second game two pitchers joined forces to throw a no-hitter for the Dragons in a 5-1 victory in five innings over Adair. Gavin Coffey and Michael Givens teamed up to stifle Adair County. Coffey held Adair hitless over four innings, allowed no earned runs, walked three and struck out six.

The Dragons never trailed after scoring one run in the second on an RBI double by Riley Pegram. Their lead increased by three runs with Coffey starting the inning by scoring off an error in the third inning.

The GCMS Dragons will play April 15 at Hart County.

Lady Tiger crack GolfStat Top 25

By JORDAN ALVES
CU SPORTS INFORMATION

Campbellsville women's golf has not let the inconsistent weather dampen its game and is the fourth spring team that has caught the attention of the national raters. The Lady Tigers cracked the polls this week and sit at No. 25 in the GolfStat rankings, officials announced on Thursday.

Women's golf joins men's tennis (19), baseball (16) and softball (9) as the four Campbellsville teams to be ranked in their respective Top 25 polls for the spring semester.

After three tournaments played, the Lady Tigers have carded impressive team scores. Campbellsville sits behind No. 1 University of the Cumberlands in the conference with a team average of 327. The Patriots lead the MSC with an average of 310.

Cumberland University is in a close pursuit in third with 329 strokes per event.

Campbellsville finished third in the SEKI Invitational but was the second highest MSC team in the field behind University of the Cumberlands.

In the MSC Spring Invite at StoneCrest Golf Club, Campbellsville finished third, but once again was the second highest conference team behind Cumberlands.

The Lady Tigers then traveled to their first NCAA DI tournament at the Eastern Kentucky Colonel Classic and outlasted the Patriots to finish as the top NAIA team in the field.

"We are excited about our ranking," said CU head coach Kim Goodin. "I felt like we deserved to move up after our play as of late. If we can go to the Cumberland University Bulldog Classic and put it all together, then I would be surprised if we do not keep moving up the polls."

Sophomore Cassidy Scantland has sparked the spring push by CU after battling through injuries in the fall. She carded scores of 80-76 in the SEKI Invite to earn medalist honors and finished tied for third at the MSC Spring Invite behind Cumberlands Bri-Ann Tokariwski.

The friendly rivalry of Scantland and Tokariwski goes back to last year at the MSC Championships, as Scantland finished just one stroke ahead to be named MSC Champion, MSC Player of the Year and MSC Freshman of the Year.

Ashley Goodin and Anna-Marie Hyatt have both shined at different times this spring. Hyatt led CU after day one of the MSC Spring Invite after firing a 78 and has the potential to shoot low on any given day. Goodin has finished just behind Scantland in two of the three tournaments.

Freshman Rachel Carter finished second for the Lady Tigers at the SEKI Invite and placed in a tie for 12th.

SCAD-Savannah sits atop the polls at No. 1, followed by Northwood (Fla.) at No. 3, British Columbia at No. 3, reigning NAIA champs Oklahoma City at No. 4, and William Woods rounds out the Top 5.

The Lady Tigers will travel to Mt. Juliet, Tenn. on Monday-Tuesday, April 13-14 for the Cumberland Bulldog Classic. Live updates will be available through Twitter - @CvilleTigers and @Cville_WGolf.

CU teams move up in NAIA rankings

By JORDAN ALVES
CU SPORTS INFO.

To say it's been a banner year for Campbellsville University athletics would be an understatement. A total of six teams had been ranked in their respective polls through the winter sports and you can add four more to that list now.

Softball (9), baseball (16), men's tennis (19) and women's golf (25) all moved up in the NAIA polls this past week and have put Campbellsville University athletics back on the map.

The success started for Fighting Tiger football winning its first Mid-South Conference championship (west-division) and advancing to the NAIA playoffs for the first time since 2001.

It was followed by men's and women's wrestling being ranked in the Top 5 and both teams having national champions (Davion Caston, Kayla Miracle and Tiara Scott).

The success then went to the basketball programs. Both the men's and women's teams won the MSC regular season championship and the Tigers won their second MSC Tournament Title.

The Lady Tigers stole the show at the NAIA National Tournament, advancing to the championship game. It was the first NAIA championship game for any CU program.

But now the teams are starting to blossom just like the spring flowers on campus.

Lady Tiger softball wiggled its way into the Top 10 for the first time in program history this week when the Lady Tigers came in at No. 9 in the fourth regular-season edition of the 2015 NAIA Softball Coaches' Top 25 Poll.

Campbellsville is led in the circle by two of the Mid-South Conference's top pitchers. Freshman Neely Quint and junior Victoria Decker are ranked one-two inside the MSC in ERA at 1.38 and 1.44, respectively. Decker also leads the MSC in opponent's batting average (.202) and wins (12). Both have been named MSC Pitcher of the Week twice.

Lady Tiger Softball is tied atop the MSC with Lindsey Wilson with 13 wins.

The Lady Tigers are the fifth CU team to be ranked in their respective Top 10 this season, joining both wrestling and basketball programs.

Tiger baseball (20-5) is back where it belongs after missing the playoffs in 2013-14. CU comes in ranked No. 16 and is tied atop the MSC with Lindsey Wilson and St. Catharine (8-3).

Carlos Torres leads the charge being ranked No. 1 in the MSC and No. 10 in the NAIA with a .446 batting average.

Men's tennis started the year ranked No. 28 but has made a steady climb in the polls. CU sits at No. 19 and is led by senior Sebastian Marot and junior Alejandro Soriano.

The Tigers carry a 9-4 overall record and are second in the MSC at 3-1. CU has seen two Tigers be named MSC Player of the Week. Nathan Boniel picked up the honor on March 10 and newcomer Vladyslav Ladygin on March 24.

The Tigers have defeated two highly ranked teams in No. 11 William Carey, 5-4 and No. 10 Cumberland University, 7-2.

Newcomer to the NAIA polls is No. 25 women's golf. After three tournaments played this spring, the Lady Tigers have carded impressive team scores. Campbellsville sits behind No. 1 University of the Cumberlands in the conference with a team average of 327.

Sophomore Cassidy Scantland has sparked the spring push by CU after battling through injuries in the fall. She carded scores of 80-76 in the SEKI Invite to earn medalist honors and finished tied for third at the MSC Spring Invite.

Campbellsville Championships:
Football - MSC West
Men's basketball - MSC regular season, MSC tournament

Women's basketball - MSC regular season, NAIA runner-up

Gupton to speak at annual scouting benefit

SPECIAL TO THE R-H

Pieter DeGrez and Greensburg Mayor Lisle Cheatham, Taylor and Green County Friends of Scouting chairmen, announces the annual campaign benefiting Scouting in Taylor and Green will be held April 16.

The event will be at 6 p.m., at Campbells-ville University. The guest speaker will be Garry Gupton, CEO of Honorable Order of Kentucky Colonels.

Garry received his Colonel Commission while working as Sports Director for WHAS TV. The Campbellsville native started several businesses including the Red&Blue Review TV Network, which covers University of Kentucky and University of Louisville athletics. His wife Terrie teaches Health at Ballard High School. Garry and Terrie have three children: Grant, Grace and Gray.

“The funds received in this campaign will assist with services provided to the packs, troops, and venturing crews in the Taylor and Green areas,” said Robert Burns, Director of Development for the Lincoln Heritage Council. “Training for adult leaders, district Cub and Scout activities, Scouting for Food and Hispanic Outreach program are but a few of the activities and services provided to the community.”

This year, the Friends of Scouting Campaign is expected to raise about 35 percent of the Lincoln Heritage Council’s operating budget, with the Taylor and Green County Friends of Scouting event raising about $14,000.

To request an invitation contact Robert Burns at 502-361-2626 or email Robert.burns2@scouting.org. Contributions to Scouting in Taylor and Green County can be made at www.lhcbso.org/donate or you may contact Robert Burns directly.

Blakeman exhibits life in art

By RON BENNINGFIELD
LANDMARK NEWS SERVICE

Walking through rooms of her home filled with a lifetime of her artwork, Phyllis Blakeman uttered the undisputable.

“Nobody lives forever, and when I’m gone, I don’t want anyone to have to go through all this stuff, so I’ve decided to have an art exhibit and clean my house,” said Blakeman, who lives in Hutcherson Heights in Hodgenville.

As so often has happened in her life, what Blakeman does benefits others.

The former art, music, and English teacher in LaRue County Schools, is “cleaning house” by holding an exhibit of her works in mid-April at the Lincoln Museum in Hodgenville. One-third of the proceeds from the sale of selected works will go to the museum, one-third to LaRue County High School’s speech and debate program, and the other third to cover expenses.

“We are honored that Phyllis thought enough of our museum and what we try to accomplish for our community that she would make this contribution,” said museum director Iris LaRue. “She is one of those people whom you appreciate and enjoy.”

LaRue described Blakeman as a tremendous museum supporter and a prolific artist.

“People don’t realize how active Phyllis is in the community,” said LaRue. “She has helped with the Main Street program, receptions, museum projects, Christmas banners, (Hodgenville) Woman’s Club, took part in drama presentations, and she’s currently teaching an art class at Hodgenville First Baptist Church.”

Her paintings and sketches will be on display April 16-19 with varying hours each day (16–3:30-7:30 p.m.; 17–10 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; 18–3:30-6:30 p.m.).

“On the 19th the exhibit will open at 1 p.m. and at 2 o’clock LCHS speech and debate members will perform excerpts from their award-winning presentations,” LaRue said.

‘Doodled and drew’ Blakeman’s interest in art came early and grew as she progressed through school.

“When I was in high school, I doodled and drew in my notebook while I was in class,” she said. “I wanted to be a fashion designer for a newspaper and intended to major in commercial art.”

Because her father, Todd Blakeman, was frequently transferred to different sites while employed by DuPont, the Green County native’s family moved often while she was growing up.

“We lived in four different states one year,” she recalled.

The family resided in Louisville when she graduated from Louisville Girls School (now Manual High School). She attended Western Kentucky College, graduating as an English/art major, music minor.

The family moved to LaRue County in the mid 1950s when her father bought the Lynn Hotel on the square in Hodgenville where Lincoln National Bank is today.

“One of my first water colors hung in the dining room at that hotel,” she said of the painting of a barn which will on display in her exhibit.

Blakeman, who had been teaching in Northern Kentucky, came to teach in LaRue County after then superintendent Ova Haney approached her about starting an art program in the district’s schools.

“My first year I taught English 9-12 grades at Magnolia

High School in the mornings, then music at Magnolia Elementary and Buffalo Elementary in the afternoons,” she recalled. “I also directed the school play and sponsored the senior class yearbook.”

‘Put my stamp on it’

Her interest in art has taken her from Maine, where she painted scenes of lighthouses to Mexico where she detailed an open-air market.

“On those occasions, I painted at the site, but most of the time, I’ll take a photo, then create my painting from that,” she said.

She wants her work to be more than a photo reproduction, however.

“I want to put my own stamp on it to make it mine,” she said.

Sometimes that ownership comes in the form of a focal point in the painting. At other times, it might be in the shapes or colors she chooses.

“One time my subject was a Victorian-style house,” she said. “I made three paintings of that same house, each time finding different shapes and colors to emphasize.”

She mentioned an award-winning painting she created which had an unusual mixture of shapes and colors.

“Since I like to name my paintings, I called this one, ‘Architectural Indigestion.’”

As much enjoyment as she gets from painting, she derives as much or more by teaching others to paint.

“I like to know that I’ve made a difference in somebody’s life, sparking some creativity,” she said.

According to those in her art class at First Baptist, she has accomplished that mission.

“Phyllis taught me that learning how to paint begins with knowing how to draw the basic shapes,” said Katie Cooper.

Cooper said Blakeman introduced her to zentangles (a method of creating beautiful images from repetitive patterns). Making the designs not only provided artistic satisfaction, but also was fun and relaxing for her.

“She’s amazing,” Cooper said.

Local DYW celebrating program's 50th year

BY CLEVIS JEFFRIES
STAFF WRITER

The Green County Distinguished Young Women program, formerly known as Junior Miss, will be celebrating its 50th year this May. Paige Squires, Green County Junior Miss Committee treasurer and the 2005 Green County Junior Miss, provided an overview of the program to Greensburg Rotary members April 7.

"It is a wonderful program," Squires said.

Participants are considered rising seniors in high school and the winner will reign as well as compete at state competition during her senior year.

She said that participants are judged in five categories, including scholastics, interview, self-expression, fitness and talent.

Squires mentioned that each young woman has already completed the scholastic and interview portion of the competition before the actual program performances of self-expression, fitness and talent.

She commented on

the judging components that make up each category. In scholastics, Squires said that one's overall GPA, strength of classes, class rank and ACT scores are taken into account.

For interview, participants are allowed 10 minutes, answering questions related to prior information supplied to the judges covering a variety of subjects, with judging based on things such as mental alertness, perception, personality, sense of values, clarity of expression, achievements and accomplishments, activities and choice of clothing.

In the self-expression category, participants respond to an on-stage question with one being able to express an opinion. Judges also take into account grace, poise and composure, posture, speech and choice of dress.

According to Squires, the fitness portion looks at one's agility, strength and stamina, coordination and body tone.

Usually lasting seven to 10 minutes, Squires said, "It's probably what the girls work on the longest and the most at practice."

She remarked that participants do the routine together and then are spotlighted individually with the score based on total performance.

In the talent segment, judges take into account things such as originality, costume, selection, stage presence, prop supports, performance and length.

She noted that there is a performance time limit for this segment.

Fundraising is a big part in hosting such an event and funding is needed to help put on the program as well as the approximately $5,000 being raised last year in cash scholarships for the participants.

According to Squires, this year five Kentucky colleges will also offer scholarships.

Because the local DYW program provides cash awards fundraising is paramount to the success of the program.

Squires mentioned that the local program also has sponsorship levels, and the Friends of Junior Miss, which gives priority seating the night of the program.

Squires noted that various events are held throughout the year by the Junior Miss Committee to raise money.

A Distinguished Young Woman Tea was held March 29 for participants representing Green and Adair Counties. Even though the program will feature participants from both counties, she said, each county's participants are scored separately with winners chosen from both counties. This is the second year for Adair County's participation.

Adair County is responsible for its own funding, Squires said.

She noted that any young lady, who is a Green County resident, may participate in the DYW program and be considered a rising senior, graduating the following year.

"Junior Miss is a really good program. It has provided schooling for a lot of girls in our community," Squires said.

This year's program will be held May 30 at Green County Middle School.

White Goods Amnesty set to return

City cleanup days set for May 11-15

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

Greensburg and Green County residents are preparing to take advantage of a pair of popular government-sponsored spring cleaning events held annually.

One program is open to both city and county residents, but the other is limited to those who reside inside the Greensburg city limits. Both programs, however, allow citizens to get rid of large, bulky items at no cost to the resident.

First up is the Green County Fiscal Court White Goods Amnesty program April 22-24. The program allows city and county residents to bring unlimited amounts of waste metal, appliances and other items to a central location for disposal at no cost to the residents.

The event will be held at the concrete slab adjacent to the Access Cable office on Columbia Highway County officials said appliances, furniture, junk cars and batteries; almost anything except paint, oil, tires, propane tanks, garbage, asphalt shingles, tree limbs, lumber or any hazardous material may be dropped off.

Call Judge-Executive John Frank's office at 270-932-4024 for more information about the White Goods Amnesty program.

The city's program will start with a celebration of neighborhood renewal and then will come to residents.

The City of Greensburg's annual spring clean-up week will kick off Saturday, May 9 with an all-day event that will target neighborhoods within the city.

Greensburg Community Development Coordinator Ivy Stanley said that volunteers and city officials will fan out across the city.

"The goal (is) to really get a jump on cleaning up the city and areas in need of attention," Stanley said. "Volunteers will help property owners declutter their property by providing the manpower to drag all junked items to the curb for pickup during the May 11-15 clean-up week. In years past, Waste Connections has limited Spring Clean-up to one large item. This year, all large items that can be disposed of will be accepted during the clean-up week."

Stanley said excess furniture and appliances are high on the list of items that will be targeted during this clean-up event.

"For refrigerators and deep freezes, the compressor must be removed prior to pick-up by Waste Connections," she said. "Old paint may also be disposed of if cat litter has been added to the paint."

Stanley said items that will not be accepted include tires, batteries, electronics and motor oil.

City of Greensburg residents can sign up prior to May 9 for assistance on disposing of items by contacting Greensburg City Hall at 270-932-4298 and providing their name, address and contact information.

Stanley said all Neighborhood Pride volunteer groups will receive a monetary donation for participating in the event. A minimum of five volunteers per group, plus a sponsor are mandatory.

"Each group will be assigned a neighborhood section and will be responsible for helping anyone in that area needing assistance," Stanley said. "In order to receive their donation, volunteer groups will need to be present throughout the entire event. To sign your volunteer group up for Neighborhood Pride Day, please contact Greensburg City Hall."

For more information, please contact Utility Coordinator Lisa Fields or Code Enforcement Officer Kim Henderson at Greensburg City Hall. For updates and additional information, please like Greensburg Matters on Facebook or visit www.greensburgonline.com.

City looks at inspection, leash ordinances

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

City of Greensburg officials are looking at possible ordinances to allow rental property inspection and require pets be restrained.

Mayor Lisle Cheatham has proposed the city require city inspection of private rental properties just as government-owned housing is regularly inspected.

"About 40 percent of the housing in Greensburg is renter-occupied, and we have an aging housing stock with the average house in Greensburg built before 1964," he said. "I have seen $800-900 electric bills because their house is not insulated or the windows aren't good and, for whatever reason, some renters may not feel comfortable reporting that."

The Mayor said ill-maintained properties impact the city from a valuation standpoint as well as presenting a problem to nearby properties.

"We need a mechanism to inspect those properties to ensure people are receiving adequate living conditions. If people are going to own a property in our community and rent it out, they need to maintain that property at a reasonable standard."

Mayor Cheatham said it is up to the Council whether to move forward with an ordinance to make inspections automatic.

"If you are entirely relying on somebody to report a problem, you are lucky if you are getting one percent of the issue," he said. "It makes our ability to enforce the ordinances we have on the books, whether it is the nuisance code or building code pretty much unenforceable."

A citizen inquiry about free-running dogs at Monday's meeting prompted officials to begin consideration of a city-wide leash law.

Currently the city has a mechanism to deal with nuisance pets, but nothing that requires animals be restrained. The citizen request would have far-reaching effects if an ordinance is implemented, effecting more than dogs.

"If we go down this path we have to deal with all the problem, not just part of it," he said. "More than half the calls we get are cats. Either multiple cats or feral cats. Cats aren't going to maul somebody, but they certainly cause a lot of property damage."

Mayor Cheatham said leash laws from places that deal with them in different ways will be studied.

"The Council is going to have to deal with issues such as how do you enforce it (and) what is the license cost going to have to be, because you can't enforce it without licenses," he said.

City gets crumb rubber grant

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

The Greensburg City Council accepted at Monday's April meeting a grant offer to use recycled tires in landscaping projects in the downtown area.

The Energy and Environment Cabinet awarded the city a $14,890 Crumb Rubber Grant that will utilize waste tires for landscaping. The landscaping projects are still to be determined.

The city must provide a 25 percent match which may be through in-kind contributions.

Water plant bonds at 2 percent

By TOM MILLS
NEWS EDITOR

The City of Greensburg's finance cost for its new water treatment plant currently under construction will be less than predicted, thanks to a favorable bond rate.

Mayor Lisle Cheatham said $2.2 million in bonds are locked in at 2.0 percent over 40 years.

"That's a point, a point-and-a-quarter below where we had projected it, so we are happy," he said.

The treatment plant is expected to open this fall.

Frank team wins Alltech competition

SPECIAL TO THE R-H

An undergraduate student from Green County stepped up in class, so to speak, to help the University of Pikeville win first place in the graduate division of the 2015 Alltech Innovation Competition.

Molly Frank, a sophomore studying pre-med, was one of two undergraduate and two graduate students on the University of Pikeville team that won the graduate competition with Rhizofeed, an herbal extraction company based in Pikeville.

Using bloodroot harvested in Eastern Kentucky, Rhizofeed extracts whole rhizome for use in poultry feed to improve gut health. Less expensive and more stable than probiotics, according to the student team, rhizome extract has anti-inflammatory properties and has been linked to improving the immune system, regulating digestion and promoting weight gain.

Rhizofeed aims to target poultry producers looking for alternatives to probiotics or antibiotics, a market expected to grow as an increasing number of major food companies, such as McDonald's, demand antibiotic-free production. Grown, extracted and sold from Kentucky, Rhizofeed will further diversify Eastern Kentucky's regional economy while improving poultry production globally.

A team from Kentucky State University captured first place in the undergraduate competition with an aquaponics venture.

Old Kentucky Home

Aquatics, which focuses on in-pond aquaponic raceway systems, was inspired by the regional potential for farmed catfish and vegetables as well as a drive to support small-scale farming.

The winning teams' competitors included Bellarmine University, Brescia University, the University of Kentucky, the University of Louisville and Western Kentucky University. With seven universities going head-to-head, Dr. Karl Dawson, chief scientific officer at Alltech, noted the challenge this year's judges had in naming winners, "The quality of the work this year was several magnitudes better than ever before but what made the winning projects so innovative was the simplicity of the ideas and the quality of the presentations."

The Alltech Innovation Competition, now in its third year with annual competitions held in both Kentucky and Ireland, holds value to Alltech, not only in terms of the ideas and possible collaborations brought forward but also in terms of talent

Police crack down on texting and driving

FROM STAFF REPORTS

In conjunction with National Distracted Driving Awareness Month, law enforcement agencies in Kentucky are stepping up efforts to persuade drivers to put down the phone as part of the second annual national texting enforcement crackdown - U Drive. U Text. U Pay.

"Driving and texting is illegal and irresponsible," said Kentucky Transportation Secretary Mike Hancock. "We are serious about stopping this deadly behavior, so all drivers must know that if you are texting while driving, you will be stopped and fined."

Violators will be liable for fines of $25 on a first offense and $50 on each subsequent offense, plus court costs.

The law bans texting for drivers of all ages while the vehicle is in motion. For drivers over 18, it allows the use of global positioning devices and reading, selecting or entering a telephone number or name for the purpose of making a phone call. Texting is allowed only to report illegal activity or to request medical or emergency aid.

For drivers under 18, no use of personal communication devices, such as cellphones and pagers, is allowed while the vehicle is in motion. The use of a global positioning system is allowed, but manually entering information must be completed while the vehicle is stopped.

In Kentucky in 2014, there were over 53,500 crashes resulting in over 14,000 injuries and 169 fatalities due to distracted driving.

identification.

"I have been amazed, totally amazed, over the three years we have now run this competition. The event brings out the best," said Dr. Pearse Lyons, president and founder of Alltech. "Young people find a way to do it, and both winning projects use products from Kentucky—yet not tobacco—to build two viable Kentucky businesses."

Also central to the Alltech Innovation Competition's founding mission is its contribution to the state's economic engine.

"To inspire these young people that you can be innovative is the real value of the Alltech Innovation Competition. We have to look for new solutions and inspiring these young people is integral," said former Kentucky governor Paul Patton, who is now the interim president of the University of Pikeville.

Alltech is holding a sister competition in Dunboyne, Ireland, today.

Jane Todd Pharmacy now open for business

BY DONNA CARMAN
SPECIAL TO THE R-H

Green Countians needing prescription medication now have another option when it comes to their prescription needs.

Jane Todd Pharmacy, located at 101 Industrial Park Road, opened for business on April 6 with a staff ready and willing to serve local residents.

"Our new pharmacy has been in the works for several months, and we're certainly happy that we are now open and ready to take care of any prescription needs our customers may have," said David Eubank, Director of Retail Pharmacy for Jane Todd Crawford Hospital, which owns the new pharmacy.

Jane Todd Pharmacy has an experienced staff. Pharmacist Terry Coyle, who most recently worked in Campbells-ville, has been a pharmacist for 46 years.

"Terry is a very likeable person, and knows a great number of people. He's very experienced and knowledgeable, and can't wait to settle in here at Greensburg and meet everyone," Eubank said.

Working with Coyle is pharmacy technician Traci Lobb, who has been in the business for 28 years, and Eubank will also fill in from time to time when Coyle can't be there. He has been a pharmacist for 35 years.

Jane Todd Pharmacy is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. central time Monday through Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday. It is closed on Sunday. The pharmacy accepts Medicaid and most major insurance plans and has a drive-through window to serve customers as well.

For more information, or to talk to any of the staff, call the pharmacy at 270-932-2239.

SVFD hosts gas pipeline training

The Summersville Volunteer Fire Department hosted a gas pipeline emergency class for rural fire services Monday evening, April 6.

Kinder-Morgan, Inc. had two local representatives, James E. Shuffett and Adam Bloyd at the training.

Topics of discussion were pipeline emergencies, location of lines within Green County, where pump stations are located and the dangers of pipelines if an emergency occurs.

Todd Price, TNG Officer, said that the training is beneficial to all rural fire departments due to transmission lines that run through Green County in order to understand their roles and responsibilities as fire fighters and to the citizens of the affected area during a gas pipeline emergency.

Approximately 20 fire fighters were present during the training.

Nathan Davis poses with items he collected for care package to send to soldiers.

Davis sends care pkgs. to soldiers

SPECIAL TO THE R-H

Nathan Davis, 11, recently collected items to be sent as care packages to soldiers deployed in foreign lands.

He undertook this project as a challenge from his church youth group leader, Vicki Bishop. She asked the young people of the church to think of some type of service they could do.

Davis had heard of a group in Massachusetts called Cape Cod Cares for the Troops. It was started in 2005 by 12-year-old Daniel De Silva. The group sends care packages to troop members stationed in Afghanistan and Iraq on a weekly basis.

"I know the troops have helped us so much that I felt like I should do something to give back to them," Davis said.

Davis asked church members, friends and students to donate travel size toiletries, gums and mints and he was given monetary donations to purchase more of the same items. He also asked anyone willing to write a letter or sign a card to be included that would help the men and women serving far away from home remember that they are never forgotten.

Davis is the son of Mike and Valerie Davis and is a fifth grader at Green County Intermediate School.

Agricultural news averaged 1.8 out of a possible seven.

Wet conditions continue to prevent most field work as corn planting is behind normal in many locations. Farmers are conducting soil tests to determine fertilizer applications, and applying when conditions allow. The average height of winter wheat was 7 inches.
